Safety Leadership – Bottom Up

If you can't manage safety, you can't manage anything.

Safety leadership is a critical aspect of organizational management, encompassing the actions, behaviors, and attitudes of individuals at all levels of the organization.

It is essential to understand what safety leadership entails, how it functions, and what it looks like in practice. Whether one holds the position of CEO or works on the shop floor, every individual plays a vital role in promoting safety within the organization.

Effective safety leadership begins at the top and permeates throughout the entire organization. While it is possible for safety leadership to emerge from the bottom, it often entails a longer and more challenging journey. Therefore, leaders must promote safety and lead by example, ensuring that safety practices are ingrained into the organizational culture from top to bottom and bottom up.
